Grant boost for mental health project

A PROJECT run by a charity based in South Tottenham has been awarded a grant to boost its aim of helping people in Haringey with mental health problems.

The project, Tottenham Talking, is being funded by Time to Change, England's biggest programme dealing with mental health stigma and discrimination.

It is being delivered by the Bridge Renewal Trust, which is based at the Laurels Healthy Living Centre, in St Ann's Road, in partnership with the Barnet, Enfield and Haringey Mental Health NHS Trust and Social Kitchen.

The Bridge trust is recruiting volunteers for Tottenham Talking. They will be trained to learn to cook, boosting their confidence by sharing their experience of mental health problems over tasty food. They will also be able to run "eat and talk" sessions at community festivals, shopping centres, parks and schools as well as the charity's community kitchen near the Tiverton estate, in South Tottenham.

It is hoped this will lead to improvements in attitudes and behaviour towards people with mental health problems.

Rachel Hughes, chairwoman of the Bridge Renewal Trust, said: "We are delighted to have received the Time to Change grant. We have bold plans to transform the way people in our community see mental health problems by encouraging conversations and offering them the chance to find out more about mental illness."

Sue Baker, director of Time to Change, added: "We know that one of the most powerful ways to change attitudes is when people take the lead in driving change within their own communities."

"So, through the grants scheme we are putting the power to make change happen locally in the hands of the experts – the people who know their communities the best."

Time to Change is run by the charities Mind and Rethink Mental Illness and funded by the Department of Health, Comic Relief and the Big Lottery Fund.

Met Police chief nabs theft suspect

THE head of the Metropolitan Police broke off a media engagement on Monday morning to make an arrest in Tottenham.

Commissioner Sir Bernard Hogan-Howe was being interviewed in Tottenham High Road, at the junction of Bruce Grove, by BBC London when a minicab pulled up and the driver called for help.

Four people leapt from the vehicle and made off, chased by a police officer who was with the commissioner.

He caught up with one of the four and arrested a 17-year-old boy inside Bruce Grove railway station on suspicion of theft and non-payment.

Descriptions of the three other suspects were sent out and the Met chief got into a police car to search for them.

Sir Bernard then arrested a 19-year-old in nearby Napier Road on suspicion of theft and making off without payment.

According to a spokeswoman from the Met, Sir Bernard has made an arrest in every rank he has held since becoming an officer in 1979.

The two teenagers who were arrested were being held in north London police stations as we went to press.

TV fine for licensee

THE licensee of the Crowe Bar, in High Road, South Tottenham, has been fined for illegally showing Sky Sports on the premises.

Paul Gonsalves was prosecuted by FACT (the Federation Against Copyright Theft) and found guilty at Highbury Corner Magistrates' Court of three offences under the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988.

He was ordered to pay £7,633 in fines and costs. More than 1,500 similar prosecutions have taken place to date and hundreds of other cases are in the pipeline.

CASE REVIEW OF TEACHER JAILED FOR CHILD ABUSE

AN INDEPENDENT review will take place into the handling of a case of a former PE teacher jailed last month for abusing a pupil.

Andy Adams, 68, was sent to prison for 12 years at Wood Green Crown Court after admitting indecently assaulting a teenage boy while he was a teacher at Highgate Wood School. Adams, who taught at the school in Montenotte Road until he retired in 2004 and is a former assistant head teacher, had been charged with a series of sexual assaults between February 2, 1980, and September 13, 1982.

His victim, a 13-year-old boy, was having personal problems at the time and had confided in Adams.

But the teacher, who was in his 30s at the time, took advantage of the boy's vulnerability and, over a period of time, groomed and manipulated him into having a sexual relationship.

The offences only came to light several years after Adams' involvement with the school ended. The sex fiend was arrested in August 2012 and charged in December last year.

The revelations about Adams' behaviour caused widespread shock at the secondary school and wider community and his name was removed from the main school building.

Instead, the building named after Adams, of Solna Road, Winchmore Hill, will be known from now on as the "admin block".

Now Sir Paul Ennals, the independent chairman of the Haringey Local Safeguarding Children's Board, is going to review how the case has been handled since the allegations were made.

A joint statement from Haringey Council and the school said: "The very understandable shock and concern felt by parents and carers about this case is shared by both the wider school community and the local authority."

"The school and the council take responsibility for safeguarding children extremely seriously and have clear and robust procedures for reporting and investigating any concerns."

"Given the very serious nature of the concerns raised by this case, the independent chair of the Haringey Local Safeguarding Children's Board is going to review how the case has been handled since the allegations were received."

"Both the school and the council very much welcome this."

Leaking flat is not safe place to live in, says young mother

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A YOUNG mum is growing increasingly desperate over living conditions in which she says she is trapped.

Rochelle Adams, 22, and her five-year-old daughter have lived in their flat in Hertford Road, Enfield Lock, for four years after Enfield Council helped her find a home to rent in the private sector.

However, the HND student has spent the past months fearing for her child's safety as water leaks into the bathroom and damp saturates the hall and the living room.

The final straw came last month when Rochelle flicked the hall light switch on – only to hear a loud bang as the bulb blew. She now has to use a candle as she cannot turn the light on.

She told the Advertiser that with the level of damp in the bathroom and in the hall she would not allow her daughter to touch anything electrical in the house.

"I am too scared to turn the light on in the hall and I have had to bring a potty into the bedroom for my daughter to try and keep her away from the bathroom as much as possible," she said.

Rochelle said that the ongoing problems with the flat and the constant worries about her daughter's safety were now affecting her studies.

"I don't understand how anyone can think this adequate accommodation for a young woman and her child," she added.

However, the property company which rents out the home, St John's Properties, in Turkey Street, Enfield Lock, insisted it had done everything in its power to resolve Rochelle's issues.

A spokesman for the company said: "When it was reported to this office that she had received an electric shock, a builder was sent in and determined the electrics to be safe.

"When she reiterated this claim, we organised an electrician to visit the property to coincide with the recent visit from Enfield Council.

"He carried out specific tests to determine again that the electrical system was in good condition and safe."

Rochelle also contacted the council with her concerns and a spokesman for the authority said "Ms Adams only made the council aware that there were problems with the state of the property last Thursday.

"We visited the property with the agent on Friday. The agent has authorised the work to remedy the faults and if the property is not returned to a suitable standard as a matter of urgency, we will consider enforcement action to ensure the required repairs are carried out promptly."

Concerned: Chase ward councillor Nick Dines in Great Cambridge Road

ANNE-MARIE SANDERSON

Fox falls into children's ward

CHILDREN had to be evacuated from a hospital's paediatric ward after a fox fell through the ceiling.

The animal gained access to the roof while major building works were being carried out at North Middlesex University Hospital, in Sterling Way, Edmont.

A spokesman for the hospital trust said that the fox had fallen through a ceiling tile.

Staff evacuated eight children from the non-patient area and the ward was relocated to another part of the hospital for a few days while the building was secured and repairs carried out.

The trust spokesman added that the RSPCA had been called to remove the animal.

She also confirmed that no one had been hurt during the incident, which took place on June 22.

THE weekly car races along a road in Enfield that police insisted they were clamping down on last year have reached new, unacceptable levels, according to a councillor.

The races are often referred to as "meets" by the speedsters, who gather in car parks of industrial centres along the Great Cambridge Road.

Now, Chase ward councillor Nick Dines has called on the Mayor of London to step in and do something before "someone gets killed".

In a letter sent to mayor Boris Johnson last week, Mr Dines

Call for renewed clampdown on racers 'before someone is killed' said: "Occasional policing activity does take place, but it is clear that this needs to be sustained and on every weekend, with fines and prosecutions being handed out to these drivers who are making people's lives a misery."

Speaking to the Advertiser about the issue, the councillor, who was elected in May, said he was now hopeful that even if the local police's resources were stretched, City Hall might step into the breach.

"If we can secure mayoral backing for putting proper resources into clamping down on this menace, then it would of course help," said Mr Dines.

"The last thing we want is for a driver at one of these meets to lose control of their car and slam it into one of the houses along that road."

Police sergeant Stuart Gill, from Southbury ward, said: "Most of the people who go there don't speed. They are mostly car enthusiasts. Most of them are law-abiding citizens.

"The A10 is the jurisdiction of Transport for London who at one time had an idea to put average speed cameras. If they did that, it would solve the problem instantly."

Mr Dines added: "Enfield police are doing their best, but they just don't have the resources."

In response to calls for action, London's deputy mayor for policing and crime Stephen Greenhalgh said: "I am very concerned that residents are suffering from this type of behaviour.

"The Metropolitan Police have said that they take this very seriously, but I will be raising it with the Commissioner to ensure it is being dealt with appropriately to give local people the peace they deserve."

Hearing aid protesters condemn charity's support for private firm

CAMPAIGNERS staged a protest outside the offices of a charity on Monday demonstrating against an advertising campaign for hearing aids, which they say undermines the NHS.

Members of the Enfield Over 50s Forum, which tackles issues affecting the elderly, picketed the offices of the Enfield branch of Age UK, in Nags Head Road, Ponders End, in protest against the charity advertising for paid-for hearing aids in partnership with private firm UK Hearing Care.

The forum members are furious about an advertising leaflet in which Age UK describes itself as "your first choice for hearing solutions".

Monty Meth, the forum's life president, said the charity was wrong to encourage people to pay for something they could get on the NHS for free.

He said: "We cannot understand why Age UK is seeking to persuade older people to spend hard-earned money buying a hearing aid from a for-profit company, which cannot possibly offer them the continuous aftercare service provided by Chase Farm Hospital's audiology department. "This is another threat to the NHS which is being encouraged by Age UK and we believe this is not the charity's function."

The company selling the devices, UK Hearing Care Management Services Ltd, is a subsidiary of UK Hearing Care and was formed in January 2013 when it committed to raising £100,000 for Age UK in exchange for the ability to use the charity's brand.

Hugh Forde, managing director of retail, trading and training at Age UK, said: "We recognise that hearing difficulties can have a devastating impact, so we seek not to compete

Venue told to beef up security after late-night shooting

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A LATE-NIGHT party venue in Edmonton where what police believe was a gangland brawl broke out last month can carry on once management has ramped up security measures, council chiefs ruled last week.

Enfield Police brought a review of the licence of the Golden Palace Banqueting Suite, in Harbert Road, in front of the licensing subcommittee, at the Civic Centre, in Silver Street, Enfield, last Wednesday, after one man was stabbed and another shot at the venue on July 12.

The committee ruled that the venue's licence will be suspended for a maximum of three months, during which time management will have to beef up security arrangements.

Speaking on behalf of the police, who had called on the council to shut down the venue, barrister James Rankin detailed a litany of licence breaches which officers had uncovered while investigating the events leading up to last month's bloodshed.

He told the chairman of the subcom-

Club faces three-month closedown for improvements to be carried out mittee, Derek Levy, that the club was only licensed to be open until 3am. However, when officers arrived at 6.20am following reports of the violent fight, they discovered that "around 50 people" were still inside the venue.

Mr Rankin said: "The victim of the shooting told police he had been dancing when he heard a bang and realised he had been shot.

"We know that the shooting took place at about five in the morning and we know that dancing should have finished way before then. It was clear they were going far beyond the hours they were licensed for."

The barrister told the hearing that a lack of CCTV footage had seriously hampered police efforts to bring the perpetrators of the violence to justice and it also breached one of the conditions of the club's premises' licence.

He added: "The licensing officer, PC Martyn Fisher, ran a check on the head doorman on duty that night – he discovered that not only did the doorman not have an SIA licence, he had never been formally SIA registered."

Mr Rankin explained to the committee that it was a legal requirement of licensed venues to employ trained and registered doormen.

However, Roderick James, legal representative for the venue's manager, Ediz Hastunc, said that his client had always hired his security staff through a third party.

He added that the bloodshed on the date in question had taken place outside the club and his client had not been aware of the incidents until police visited the venue later in the morning.

The subcommittee ruled that the club would not have its licence revoked permanently, but that it should close down until conditions, including the installation of metal detector arches, had been met.

Laying down conditions for the club to continue: Derek Levy, chairman of the licensing subcommittee

Dropped crowbar led police to track down burglar on shop CCTV

A BURGLAR who broke into a home with a crowbar before making off with thousands of pounds worth of goods has been jailed for a total of 12 months.

Tolga Binbuga, of Riverdale Court, Bush Hill Park, was sentenced to nine months in prison when he appeared at Wood Green Crown Court last Thursday.

Binbuga, 24, had pleaded guilty to residential burglary at an earlier hearing.

At the same time, he was sentenced to three months behind bars for an earlier conviction of actual bodily harm, to run consecutively – meaning he will have to spend a total of 12 months in prison.

Binbuga broke into a home in Main Avenue, Bush Hill Park, on October 5, 2013, before escaping with the keys to a Mercedes car and more than £3,000 worth of electrical items.

According to police, in his haste to flee, Binbuga dropped the crowbar and some of the electrical equipment.

When officers found the crowbar, they discovered it had been bought from B&Q in Great Cambridge Road, Enfield, earlier that day.

Binbuga was identified using the CCTV from the store.

He was arrested on October 28 and charged with burglary on November 19.

Investigating officer Detective Constable Rob Delaney said: "This investigation would not have been possible without help from the staff at B&Q.

"With their help we have taken a burglar off the streets of Enfield."

Driver cut from vehicle

A MAN had to be cut from his vehicle following a collision in Edmonton on Friday afternoon.

The fire brigade were called to the junction of Great Cambridge Road and Bury Street West at 1.40pm after a camper van collided with a bus stop.

A man, in his 20s, was taken to the Royal London Hospital, in Whitechapel, east London, after being cut from his vehicle, suffering from a head injury and neck and back pain.

A woman was treated at the scene for shock.

The incident caused rush-hour delays along the A10.

Rush-hour chaos for commuters on M25

MOTORISTS faced rush-hour chaos on the M25 on Monday morning after two separate incidents left traffic tailing back for miles.

A tyre on a lorry caught fire on the clockwise section of the motorway between junctions 24 and 25 at about 4am.

The London Fire Brigade attended the scene and the fire was under control by 5.16am.

A fire brigade spokeswoman said that a small amount of milk from the lorry spilled on to the carriageway, but was cleared from the scene by the time the fire was under control.

All lanes were reopened at 6.45am, but motorists were still left facing delays.

Less than half an hour later, in the opposite direction, a broken-down vehicle in an area of extensive roadworks between junctions 25 and 28 saw traffic grind to a halt.

Motorists travelling anticlockwise yesterday morning faced more delays after a collision in the early hours close to junction 19 involving a lorry left debris across the carriageway.

Traffic was left queueing back to junction 23.

Pedestrian hurt in collision

A PEDESTRIAN was taken to hospital with chest injuries following a collision with a car in Edmonton on Friday night.

The London Ambulance Service was called to the scene of the collision at the junction of Causeway Road and Hertford Road at 8.50pm.

A man, believed to be in his 30s, was treated at the scene for chest injuries before being taken to the Royal London Hospital, in Whitechapel, east London.

Man on stolen bike arrested

Cat Hill squatters go back to base camp after court ruling is delayed

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

SQUATTERS occupying the site of a former university campus in protest at a housing development there have been left unsure about their future following a court hearing.

Barnet County Court heard petitions from developer London and Quadrant housing and squatters last week to determine whether to enforce a possession order.

But at the end of proceedings last Wednesday, District Judge Stone ruled that he needed "more time to deliberate his decision" and would then put it in writing.

L&Q sought the eviction order after a band of eco-warriors set up camp at the former Middlesex University campus, in Cat Hill, Cockfosters, in April.

A hearing in May, at which the possession order was first sought, saw many squatters appear in court – but only two were present last week. Many were not even in the country, but in Hungary.

The activists are protesting against the building of 231 homes by L&Q and what they claim is the wholesale destruction of the natural habitats of rare breeds of newts and bats.

The courtroom was thronged with residents who live near the Cat Hill site on the Enfield-Barnet border and who have joined forces with the conservationists in opposing the development.

Sara Beecham, counsel for L&Q, dismissed the protesters' argument that they were allowed to remain on the site under article 8 of the European Human Rights Act, which says everyone has the right to privacy in their home and family life.

She told the court: "Occupying land for the sole purpose of protest does not constitute a significant association with the land." She added that as the activists had only been on the site since April, it could not be deemed their "home".

Ms Beecham also dismissed the squatters' claim the land is protected by an education trust document penned in 1912, which states that it should be used "in perpetuity" for educational purposes.

She read from documents of indenture, pointing to paragraphs which state there is no clause that prevents the sale of the land.

The squatters, speaking in their own defence, said that the sale of the land was only permissible if the Charity Commission agreed to it.

Donovan Volk, one of the squatters, told the court the area should be considered his home as he had "barely left the site in four months".

He also referred to the 1912 document, saying that when the trust was set up to manage the land on behalf of a wealthy educationalist, there was a covenant in 1891 that banned the sale of the land to anyone.

Fellow squatter Peter Nichols accused L&Q and Enfield Council of "stealing the land from the children in Enfield".

He said: "The whole thing is criminal. I sat in front of those gates

Under canvas: The squatters set up camp at the former Middlesex University site in Cat Hill in April every day from February. People told me I was risking my life in standing up to these people."

The judge asked him how that related to L&Q's "right to possession". "The corruption involved here means they have no right to possession," replied Mr Nichols.

"But why does that give you a right to be there?" asked the judge, who will give his ruling on whether the activists can remain on the land at a future date.

Meanwhile, the squatters have returned to Cat Hill while they await his decision.

Man rails against rent hike for land

By Mary Isokariari

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A MAN has accused a rail operator of using "bullying tactics" to force residents to pay more money to rent land.

Tony Antoni, 64, of Woodland Way, Winchmore Hill, has been paying rent on 50ft of land at the bottom of his garden for the past 24 years.

It has risen over time from £50 to the current figure of £96.32 – which he paid in June.

However, the retired bank manager received a letter from Network Rail on July 2, advising him the rent is below the land's current market value and therefore the company was proposing an increase to £500, plus VAT – meaning an annual rent close to £600.

"It's out of order," said an angry Mr Antoni. "How have they come to the conclusion the land is worth that? In my opinion they are looking to make money off old age pensioners."

The letter states residents can opt out of the new agreement, but Mr Antoni claimed he was not consulted about the proposal for the "wasteland", which is "no use to anybody else".

He said: "I don't like the way Network Rail are trying to bully their customers. This isn't the first time they have come up with schemes they have not thought through properly."

"I have spoken to a few of my neighbours and we all agree that we will not pay the extra fees," added Mr Antoni.

He originally started renting the land, on which he built a greenhouse and a shed, for privacy purposes.

Returning the land to Network Rail would involve dismantling the outbuildings, as well as a fence that separates the land and the railway line and rebuilding them on his land, which Mr Antoni said would be a hassle.

A Network Rail spokeswoman said: "Every penny Network Rail receives in rent is reinvested into improving the railway for passengers, which is why it is important that rents reflect the current market value."

"Many of the agreements residents have on this road to lease part of their gardens from Network Rail date back to British Rail days and the new charges reflect the appropriate level of rent."

"Some properties of this road already are paying the current market value."

"All properties have been given at least four months' notice and have the option not to proceed and return the land to Network Rail."

"If residents have any questions or concerns, then they can call our 24-hour helpline on 08457 114 141."

Columnist

Leftside

WE Brits are bottom of the class across the curriculum, and we get our lowest marks in history. True, we'll occasionally pick up a historical romance in an airport bookshop, or listen to some celebrity historian ranting on TV. But our attitude to history is like our attitude to politics: we delight in saying we don't know much about it.

However, the centenary of 1914 gives history a different meaning for my age group because we knew people who lived through the First World War – our grandparents.

I remember my maternal grandfather as a mild-mannered old bloke, although in early photos he looks rather morose.

He served two years in the trenches with the 7th (Bermondsey) battalion of the East Surrey Regiment. In March 1918, during the last German offensive, he was taken prisoner. A German doctor operated on his wounded, gangrenous thumb, leaving him with the stump that fascinated his infant grandson.

Grampy didn't talk much to his children, never mind his grandchildren, about the war.

A harness-maker by trade, he claimed to have been more upset by the sight of dead horses than of dead men. He didn't blame the Germans for the malnutrition that nearly killed him in the prison camp. "They were starving themselves," he explained.

But he didn't draw any revolutionary conclusions from the imperialist bloodbath – he voted Conservative all his life. "There's always got to be rich and poor," he used to say (more or less what we all believe now...).

Labour council has done much to address school places crisis

EITHER Councillor Daniel Pearce (Letters, Advertiser, July 30) didn't fully hear the whole debate on primary schools in Southgate, or he didn't understand the vote that was taken at the last council meeting on July 16.

Others might be less generous with his interpretation of the debate, based on his letter to your newspaper, and say that he is purposely trying to mislead your readers.

Mr Pearce should put the interests of pupils before any attempt to make party political points. Getting the facts right is the best start to that.

The facts are these:

1 The decision not to grant permission to open a primary school at Ashmole Academy as taken by the Tory-led government.

Readers might also note that Ashmole Academy is in Barnet, not Enfield.

2 I have agreed to write with Bambos

Charalambous, the associate cabinet member responsible for western Enfield, to Secretary of State for Education Nicky Morgan, asking her to reconsider her government's decision.

3 Enfield's Labour council has, since 2010, added some 4,400 new primary school places across the borough.

4 This September, we are opening an additional class at Bowes Primary, based on the Broomfield School site.

5 We are rebuilding Garfield Primary from a two-form entry to a three-form entry school.

6 We cannot pre-empt planning decisions, but are hopeful for a new two-form entry school at Grovelands.

I urge Mr Pearce to add his support to this school – something he has yet to do.

Ayfer Orhan
Cabinet member for schools, children's services and protection

A primary concern is that kids should not have to walk miles

ENFIELD Council recently held a cabinet meeting to discuss school places.

It acknowledged that the south-west of the borough was an area of acute need and set out its plans to tackle this dire shortage.

As well as 30 extra places at a new offshoot of Bowes Primary School, the council is planning to provide another 30 places at Edmonton County School to relieve pressure on south-west Enfield.

Unfortunately, this will do little to help those in areas of real need.

It will be of no use to families in blackspots which are not covered by the catchments of any good schools, such as parts of the Fox Lane area and the Minchenden Estate/Barnet borders.

Furthermore, we would challenge whether this school is in the south-west of Enfield.

In 2013, the report that went to cabinet located Edmonton County in west central Enfield. It appears that the council, under pressure to provide places, is shifting boundaries in its attempt to come up with a solution.

Families in the south-west of Enfield who are allocated this school will have to drive a considerable distance in rush hour, adding to congestion, pollution and parking problems.

The council is spending £250,000 at Edmonton County School's Bury Street campus on road safety measures, including CCTV parking enforcement, waiting restrictions and a 20mph speed limit to "encourage walking and improve safety".

Walking several miles along busy roads with primary school-aged children is not a solution for those families in the greatest need.

Residents will get say on Chase Farm plans

RE: Ivy Beard's letter "Unanswered questions over hospital takeover" (Advertiser, August 6).

Since the acquisition of Barnet and Chase Farm hospitals, the Royal Free London has made the redevelopment of Chase Farm Hospital a key priority.

Many of the buildings at Chase Farm are old and dilapidated and spread out over a large area, forcing patients to travel some distance for care. We urgently need to transform the site into a modern hospital that will ensure patients receive safe, clean and efficient healthcare in a 21st-century environment.

The trust is currently engaging with patients, residents, local politicians and other stakeholders through regular meetings. Feedback from these will inform a planning application which will be submitted to Enfield Council in November. Residents will then have the opportunity to comment on the proposed redevelopment plan.

The £263million of transitional funding referred to in Ms Beard's letter is money provided by the Department of Health, NHS England and CCGs for the acquisition of Barnet and Chase Farm hospitals. The money has been provided for the cost of the transaction, the cost of integrating and developing services, the cost of clearing Barnet and Chase Farm hospitals' historic debt and to partly fund the redevelopment of Chase Farm. The trust is planning to spend around £120m on the redevelopment scheme and all the money gained from land sales at the site will be used for the benefit of patients at Chase Farm.

We are keen to bring services closer to patients' homes. For example, we recently opened a dialysis unit in Tottenham Hale, as many of our dialysis patients come from the local area.

Cycle scheme? On yer bike!

I ATTENDED the meeting organised by the Enfield Town Conservation Study Group and it was clear from the meeting that residents and businesses in Enfield do not want to see super-highway dedicated cycle lanes at the expense of parking spaces.

The scheme will harm shops along Green Lanes and Hertford Road to benefit a few cyclists who want to bike to work in the town centre.

This scheme is a waste of taxpayers' money and should be revised to one that will not only encourage residents to cycle, but also one where cyclists and motorists respect each other – and at the same time promote our high streets.

Thanks to Canterbury Ward staff

I WOULD like to say a big thank you to all the staff on Canterbury Ward at Chase Farm Hospital.

My husband had a hip replacement operation and stayed on the ward for eight days.

I was very impressed with all the staff – from the tea lady to the nursing staff. They often get bad publicity, so I think praise where due should be given.

Library handed over for revamp

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

ONE of the borough's libraries will be off limits to the public for a year while it undergoes a facelift. Palmers Green library, in Broomfield Lane, was officially handed over to developers on Friday and construction work on a new learning hub will begin on Monday.

According to Enfield Council, the project is being partly funded by the sale of Southgate Town Hall, which adjoins the library, to developers, who plan to turn the old building into flats.

Explaining why Enfield is able to sustain library refurbishments while other boroughs struggle to keep their libraries open, a council spokeswoman said: "Enfield values libraries.

"Libraries in this borough serve many functions. Parents can sign their babies up to the library, young people can use them for studying, job hunters can use them. They are not a place of hush any more."

And, as reported in this paper, a library can also be an ideal place for welcoming babies into the world – as Maria Nieves Ruano-Antequa proved when she gave birth to her daughter Bryanna Saka-Ruan among the bookshelves of Edmonton Green library on June 30.

Admitting she was thrilled at the prospect of another upgraded library in the borough, Ayfer Orhan, the council's cabinet member for education and children's services, said: "This new library will be equipped with the latest computers and a broad selection of books, music and films to borrow.

"There will be areas for people to study and search for jobs. It will be a lively centre for learning, training and children's fun. I am pleased to welcome residents and council staff who have supported the development and look forward to the continuing success of this very popular library."

Car ends up in shop wall after collision

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A CAR was left embedded in the wall of a music shop in Enfield following a collision on Monday.

According to eyewitnesses, the black Audi first collided with a van parked in a service road alongside Baker Street before finishing up in the side of the North London Music Centre.

Amarjit Broca, who lives in one of the flats adjoining the shop, told the Advertiser that he had been in his home watching TV when he heard two loud bangs at about 5.25pm.

"I rushed out and I saw a huge hole in the side of the shop with the car almost inside," he said.

"I'm not going back into my house until a structural engineer has a look at it. It doesn't look safe."

Jenny Calvert, who lives above the shop, said that she was coming home with her daughter and mother when she saw the car stuck in the side of the building.

She was escorted into her flat by a fireman to assess any damage that might have been done.

"We do not know if the building is safe, so we just have to hang on until someone comes out to have a proper look at it," she said on Monday.

"We were supposed to go to my mother's home tonight for her birthday celebration, but this has scuppered that plan."

Paramedics arrived on the scene and treated the driver of the car for a cut lip and shock. He did not require hospital treatment.

Police officers closed Baker Street in both directions from Parsonage Lane to Tenniswood Road. It was partially closed overnight and did not fully reopen until 6.30am yesterday.

Up, up and away: Children and deputy mayor Patricia Ekechi released hundreds of balloons at the Enfield Town Park playday COUNCIL chiefs got in touch with their inner child at a playday in Enfield last week.

Deputy mayor Patricia Ekechi joined hundreds of children in Enfield Town Park, in Cecil Road, on Wednesday for a day of family fun.

The free event, which was part of national Playday, kicked off a summer of play in the borough.

As well as allowing children to have fun, bouncing, dancing, skipping, running and general mayhem are vital to keeping kids healthy.

Youngsters enjoyed bouncy castles, arts and crafts stalls, face painting, games and dance workshops, while the mayor helped them to release hundreds of balloons.

Ayfer Orhan, Enfield Council's cabinet member for education and children's services said: "This was a special day for celebrating our children's right to play.

"I also hope Enfield's children take full advantage of the free activities at centres throughout the borough for the rest of the summer."

Locks away as Stavroulla's hair is lopped off for charity

Before and after: Stavroulla Panayiotou was supported by her mum Penny as she had her long hair cut off

ANNE-MARIE SANDERSON

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A FOOTBALLER was so moved by the plight of young children undergoing cancer treatment that she decided drastic action was needed to support research into the disease.

Stavroulla Panayiotou, of Wagon Road, Hadley Wood, chose to have her almost waist-length locks chopped off in a bid to raise money for and awareness of children suffering hair loss as a result of intensive chemotherapy treatments.

"There are kids out there who are really young who are undergoing cancer treatment and they are surrounded by other children and maybe they feel left out," she told the Advertiser.

"The way I look at it is not such a big deal – my hair will grow back, but for some of those children that's not the case."

The midfielder, who played for Spurs Ladies before joining her current club, Enfield Town Ladies, admits that when she revealed what she was planning to do to friends and family they had reservations.

"Lots of people asked me, 'Why not just raise the money, why cut all your hair off?', but I felt it was something I really had to do," said the 22-year-old.

Stavroulla's determination to go ahead impressed colleagues at the Queen Mother Sports Centre in Westminster, where she works as a senior recreational assistant.

"One said it was a 'bold and brave thing to do'," said a giggling Stavroulla.

Others have also been equally impressed by her decision, and so far she has single-handedly raised almost £2,400 for the charity Children with Cancer UK.

Speaking before she faced the chop on Saturday morning, Stavroulla admitted that she would probably get very nervous in the hours leading up to the cut-off point at The Balloon Shop, in Chase Side, Southgate.

"I think I will just be thinking that I want to get it over with and then I will be fine after that – it will grow back after all," she added.

Master chef: Terence 'TJ' Dobson is launching a series of cooking films at the tender age of 13

Recipe for success

By Mary Isokariari

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A TEENAGE chef is launching a series of films to encourage schoolkids to eat healthily.

Terence "TJ" Dobson, 13, of Ashfield Road, Southgate, realised his passion for food when he began cooking alongside his mother six years ago.

Eager to show off his culinary skills, the youngster secretly applied to appear in the 2012 series of the BBC's Junior MasterChef, beating off stiff competition for a coveted place on the show.

TJ, a pupil at Ashmole Academy, in Cecil Road, Southgate, said: "When I found out I had been picked, I was so excited, overwhelmed and thrilled."

His dishes of chicken, duck and lobster so impressed judges John Torode and Donal Skehan that TJ sailed through to the final stages of the competition – and since his appearance on the show he has received a lot of support from friends.

"They are happy, encouraging me to keep going as it's my dream," he said.

TJ has cooked lunch in his school's Schoolboy is serving up a series of films after reaching TV final kitchen for 15 guests, including the Mayor of Barnet Lisa Rutter. He said: "I didn't feel nervous as I have confidence my food will be good."

The ambitious youngster, who is also the co-chairperson of the Mayor of London's Youth Board, has seen his recipes become part of the school curriculum, an accomplishment which he described as "unreal".

TJ believes that his mission to get more kids into the kitchen by the launching the series of Cook With Me films, available to download though his website from September 1, is "realistic."

"It's understandable people want to eat junk food, but once kids learn how to make healthier food, they will understand that it's better for them and they should carry on," he said.

Eager to make a difference, TJ dreams of opening his own restaurant serving French, British and Japanese cuisine.

He added: "I will carry on with cooking and probably do more TV shows and radio, going to different countries talking about how important healthy cooking is. I would like to go to America and travel the world once I open up my own my own restaurant."

How part of history has been neglected

By Ruth McKee
ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

AN exhibition looking at the hidden history of the LGBT community in London is taking the chance to celebrate the untold story of a once maligned minority.

Molly Spoons, at Bruce Castle Museum, in Lordship Lane, Tottenham, is celebrating the histories of those people who had to hide their existence for much of this country's past.

The collection of artefacts from gay rights campaigners and vocal opponents of the Conservative government's section 28 laws in the 1980s is designed to provoke thought on how we hold on to and remember those who weren't on history's winning side.

Named after the almost folkloric Molly Spoons, which are believed to have been exchanged in Georgian London as love tokens between homosexual men in the Molly Houses – which were the pre-cursor of contemporary gay bars – the exhibition is centered on the importance of preserving the histories of the repressed and downtrodden.

"This exhibition focuses on LGBT history, which is often an overlooked part of history," Deborah Hedgecock, the curator of the exhibition, told the Advertiser.

"The exhibition will look at how Haringey Council became a very important role model in terms of how to counter the negative backlash against people from the LGBT community, exemplified by the section 28 law that came into effect in the 1980s.

"Often this aspect of unwritten history is overlooked and not thought to be important – but by using artefacts from local people involved in campaigning against section 28 we want to show the importance of celebrating that aspect of history."

Although the exhibition does not feature the Molly Spoons of the title, Deborah says this underlines the importance of holding on to artefacts which might one day reveal key things about the history of a neglected minority.

"This is a project that we have done alongside University College London and the LGBT community," she added.

"This is an important exhibition as we are showing that people's lives, no matter who they are, are important."

The exhibition will run until Monday, September 29.

Annington release two bed home ideal for FTBs in the heart of Whetstone

This month Annington launch a two bedroom property in the heart of Whetstone, well-suited to first time buyers and young professionals.

The refurbished home features a modern kitchen and bathroom and has been redecorated throughout. It also has its own allocated parking space. The house has been tastefully decorated in neutral colours, allowing for future home owners to stamp their own identity on the property.

Situated in the London Borough of Barnet, Whetstone provides a quiet suburban environment within easy reach of central London. Surrounded by green spaces, the property is within walking distance of Totteridge & Whetstone station, which is served by the Northern Line, offering easy access across London's transport network.

Angela Walsh, Head of Sales and Marketing at Annington, comments, "Whetstone is a vibrant community which offers a range of local amenities. This property is well suited to central London commuters, who can take advantage of the nearby Northern Line, and particularly first time buyers who can purchase using Help-To-Buy if desired."

Whetstone has a bustling community atmosphere, and is well suited to a wide range of house hunters. The area offers several shopping, dining and entertainment facilities, with the central high street boasting a range of restaurants, cafes and bars.

Tessa Pascall of Barnard Marcus, comments, "There is a high demand for second hand homes in the area at present; most open-houses have a minimum of 15 viewers on the day, and we imagine this latest Annington property will prove equally popular. The greatest level of demand is coming from first time buyers, and also families, attracted by the excellent local amenities and peaceful environment that the area offers. Average prices for a two bedroom flat in the area are currently in the region of £300K."

The town was an important staging post for stagecoaches going north from London and boasts some beautiful buildings dating back to the 15th century. It is also rumoured that Winston Churchill and Adolf Hitler's deputy, Rudolph Hess, held a secret meeting in the town during the Second World War.

The area is popular for its good schools which cater for all ages, from nurseries to Sixth Form colleges. Brookhill Nursery, Woodridge Primary and All Saints CofE Primary are all nearby to accommodate younger children, whilst there are several excellent choices for secondary education, including Saint Michaels' Catholic Grammar School (rated 'Outstanding' in its last Ofsted report), Woodhouse College, and slightly further afield the highly regarded Queen Elizabeth's School (ranked first in the Sunday Times Schools Guide 2013 for state secondary schools).

The development is also well positioned for the M25, M1 and A1 motorways and Luton Airport is approximately a 40 minute drive away.

GRADUATION CEREMONY HELD FOR SCHOOL LEAVERS

at HEAD START Day Nursery in Crews Hill, Enfield

Pre-school children at Head Start Day Nursery in Crews Hill, Enfield were delighted to receive their Graduation Certificates at a recent ceremony for school leavers.

Lucy Speechley, the Nursery Manager, said, "The children were so excited, many of the children have been at our nursery since babies" and "although the children would be missed they are all well prepared for the next phase of their schooling life."

Since opening the nursery in Crews Hill in the summer of 2010, the nursery has gone from strength to strength. Lucy goes on to say, "What makes our nursery quite unique is our extensive grounds – it is proven that children benefit tremendously from regular sustained periods of play in a rich and stimulating outdoor environment. It supports children's problem solving skills and nurtures their creativity, as well as providing opportunities for their developing imagination, inventiveness and resourcefulness."

The nursery is now very busy taking admissions for the new generation of babies.

School bids farewell to its 'inspirational' headteacher

THE headteacher of a Tottenham primary has retired after almost three decades at the school.

Rosemary Kilbride taught at St John Vianney, in Stanley Road, for 28 years – during which time she did much to improve life at the school, as well as in the area.

This September will be the first time in nearly 40 years when Mrs Kilbride has not had to contemplate returning to school after the summer break.

As well as plenty of well wishes from staff, parents and pupils, Mrs Kilbride's time at the school was marked by a celebratory mass at St John Vianney Church, in West Green Road.

During her time at St John Vianney, Mrs Kilbride set up a scheme to sponsor a Chinzi Primary School in Malawi.

She twice visited the south African country and helped to raise thousands of pounds for the school, allowing it to build two houses for its teachers.

Closer to home, Mrs Kilbride campaigned for Haringey Council to improve Stanley Road Open Space, opposite the school.

Now, following extensive planting efforts by pupils, it has been transformed from a dumping ground into a well-used pocket park.

In response to the riots in August 2011, Mrs Kilbride set up a peace commission involving children from the primary school.

She has also worked closely with Margaret

Saying goodbye: St John Vianney School

Mizen, who with husband Barry set up the Jimmy Mizen Foundation after their 16-year-old son was murdered in a bakery in Lee, south London, in May 2008.

The foundation works to stop youth violence and keep youngsters safe.

Mrs Mizen is now a regular visitor to the school, while the children perform an annual peace show for parents.

Mrs Kilbride has also worked with London Citizens to set up a City Safe Zone along West Green Road, meaning that businesses in the area offer safe havens for young people who feel in danger.

Paying tribute to Mrs Kilbride, deputy headteacher Nuala Kennedy summed her up simply as a "truly inspirational person, who has done so much for the school and the local area".

Children will soon realise a pension's not a long pencil

AHEAD of personal finance education being introduced to the school curriculum from this autumn, a pensions provider has revealed the enlightening results of what happened when it quizzed children about money matters.

Workplace pensions provider NOW: Pensions asked 14 children aged between six and nine a host of questions, including "What does a pension mean?", "Where does money come from?" and "What would you do with £1million?"

Most of the children had no idea what a pension was. Eight-year-old Libby ventured that it was "a long pencil" while Frankie, also eight, thought it was "something to do with science".

When it came to where money comes from, seven-year-old Harley was confident it came from "my dad's wallet", but Sammy, six, said that "when you work harder and harder, you get more money and the money goes into the bank."

The financially-minded Sammy also said of saving: "If I don't save my pocket money, I won't be able to do the things I want to do," while Frankie added that "these days you don't have things for free a lot".

Amy Mankelov, communications manager at NOW: Pensions, said: "Many of the children showed wisdom beyond their years with some really inspiring and touching thoughts on money matters and more."

"Saving needn't be complicated and although the term pension proved baffling, most understood the importance of saving and were proud of their piggy bank."

"Hopefully, with the introduction of personal finance education in schools, generations of young people will now be able to gain the confidence and skills they need to manage their personal finances."

Education for Life

School hopes to tap into experience of old pupils

A BOYS' school has teamed up with education charity Future First to establish a network of past pupils.

The scheme will enable Enfield Grammar to reconnect with former students and help to support the current generation by sharing experiences.

The secondary school, which has two sites in Enfield Town, is keen to trace as many former students as possible.

Headmaster John Kerr said: "We believe that Future First can help us to maintain contact with former students of the school who will hopefully benefit those students currently studying at Enfield Grammar.

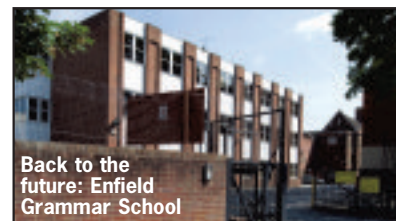

"A network of former students with all their valuable experience will be vital in helping us to broaden current students' job horizons and equip them better for the world of work.

"At the same time these former students can consider joining the old boys' association."

Future First's vision is that every state school or college should be supported by a thriving alumni community to help boost current students' work chances.

More than 60,000 former students across Britain have already signed up to stay connected with their old school.

They are helping to inspire young people by acting as career and education role models, mentors, work experience providers,

Back to the future: Enfield Grammar School governors, donors or fundraisers.

Alex Shapland-Howes, managing director of Future First, said that the scheme had been inspired in part by the statistic that 39 per cent of state school students do not know anyone in a job to which they aspire.

He said: "If they see that someone who went to the same school, grew up in the same community and has achieved a fulfilling and satisfying job, then it helps them see it is possible for them, too.

"It's really important for all students to be motivated to succeed in the working world and hearing first-hand from people in interesting jobs can make a huge difference."

To sign up, email Nick Whiting, assistant headteacher at the school, at nwhiting@enfieldgrammar.com. Ex-pupils can also join the scheme by clicking on the former students link at www.futurefirst.org.uk

Launch of record label is music to students' ears

STUDENTS are in a spin following the news that a record label which will release tracks written and recorded by musicians at Middlesex University is to become a reality.

Grove Records looks likely to launch in spring 2015, with the label's first releases coming out in the spring of next year.

The label, which will be run by students and backed by staff, has moved a step closer to reality after a series of summer workshops helped Project Grove Records enter the start-up phase.

Named after the Grove building at Middlesex's Hendon campus, which houses the university's school of media and performing arts, Grove Records will release tracks written and recorded by students in the state-of-the-art recording studios there.

Music students at Middlesex will be responsible for the day-to-day running of the label, dealing with everything from A&R and promotion to distribution and marketing.

They will also be responsible for the label's finances, and will have the chance to stand for a position on the board of directors.

Students will receive guidance from Middlesex's music department staff, all of whom have professional experience of the industry.

Marcus O'Dair, who jointly leads the popular music degree at the university, as well as being artist-manager for electronic/acoustic band Grasscut, said the course was vital for anyone wishing to learn all aspects of the industry.

He said: "The current flux in the music industries makes it necessary for many musicians to operate as entrepreneurs.

"It's a great time to be studying music and, in my view, that study should include exploring new opportunities for music entrepreneurship."

Nathan Hayward, a second year music business and arts management student working on Project Grove Records, said: "I wanted to get involved in the project because it's a great opportunity to expand and learn new skills through the experience of professional work. It gives those of us involved a hands-on approach to everything we learn in our university courses."

Students from the music business and arts management and the popular music degrees will be the first to work on the record label when the 2014/15 academic year begins in September.

St Mary's CE Primary School

A new school opening September 2015

To address the shortage of primary school places in the local area, the new school will open for Nursery and Reception children and will be:

- A high performing Church of England school providing 60 places each year
- Organised with small classes in initial years (20 children per class) to nurture children as they start school
- Delivering the National Curriculum with a high focus on English & Maths and personal development
- Located on the site of St Mary's CE High School, Cheshunt

The School welcomes children of all faiths and none, but it is important to be able to support the Christian ethos of the school.

Your call: when to give your child their own mobile phone

WITH the new school year looming closer, many parents are facing a modern dilemma: when do give your child their first mobile phone?

Sooner rather than later, it would seem, as new research suggests more than half of children aged ten or under (52 per cent) have a mobile phone, while 90 per cent of kids aged eight to 14 possess one.

The study by comparison site broadbandchoices.co.uk found that ten was the average age children get their first phone.

But while some parents may worry about the time children spend on their phones, the fact is that mobiles can serve a useful purpose for parents.

A separate study by Netmums and the online mobile phone retailer e2save found that parents' main motivation for buying phones for their children was for emergencies and safety reasons, with about half of phones for kids aged nine to 14 bought for this reason.

Communication and keeping tabs on a child's whereabouts were also important factors, accounting for 39 per cent of motivations to buy a phone for nine to 11-year-olds and 29 per cent for those aged between 12 and 14.

"Most of the time parents are giving mobile phones to children because of safety and keeping in touch," agrees Jeremy Todd, chief executive of the parenting charity Family Lives.

"Our main concern is if the phone is just being used as a pacifier – to keep children quiet."

While 45 per cent of parents think their child only spends up to one hour per day on the mobile, almost a quarter of kids admitted to spending up to four or more hours per day using it.

Indeed, 15 per cent of children said they would rather give up food and sleep in favour of playing on the mobile, while nearly a quarter (23 per cent) were willing to give up seeing their friends face to face to use their phone more.

Children predominantly use mobiles for making calls, texting, playing games and using social apps such as Facebook and Twitter, the survey found.

Mr Todd added: "Kids aren't necessarily gaming on their mobiles – they are staying in touch with friends, so using mobile phones doesn't necessarily have to be perceived as a bad thing."

"But if they are gaming all day long on their phone, they need to be encouraged to try a variety of other things, including playing outside."

If you are planning on giving your child a phone, avoid expensive handsets as these can be easy pickings for thieves.

If you are worried about your child running up a large bill, you can get pre-pay phones or capped contracts.

If the phone has internet access, make children aware of the high cost and security and personal dangers of using this.

LYONSDOWN SCHOOL BURSARY

Lyonsdown is an independent school for girls aged 3-11 years and boys aged 3-7 years

We believe in providing high quality teaching and learning within a nurturing environment. Our latest Independent School Inspection report said 'Lyonsdown School provides a happy and secure environment where pupils can thrive in fulfilment of its aims' which are:

- To provide education in a happy and secure environment where children can thrive and achieve personal excellence.
- To offer a broad, balanced curriculum embracing the seven areas of learning in Early Years Foundation Stage and the National Curriculum throughout the school with emphasis on Literacy and Numeracy.
- To prepare boys at 7+ and girls at 11+ to take up places in schools that are best suited to their needs.
- To develop independent thinking and an ability to express thoughts, feelings and opinions and develop creativity and imagination.
- To be inclusive and respectful of the unique value of each individual, encouraging them to play their part in expressing themselves, within the family life of the school and in the wider world, whilst upholding the principles of Lyonsdown's Christian Foundation which remains at its heart.
- To encourage the development of confident, caring individuals and allow pupils opportunities to develop their own human values, learning respect for the feelings of others and developing confidence and self esteem.
- To develop pupils' confidence to participate in physical activities and to express themselves through presentation.
- To work in partnership with parents and to provide a high degree of pastoral care, enabling pupils to grow and look forward to being part of the modern world.

In order to offer these opportunities to the widest possible cross section of the community the Lyonsdown School Trust is introducing a bursary award.

In September 2015, up to two places will be made available for children to join the school and receive a bursary award to cover the cost of the school's fees and any additional costs initially incurred. The bursary process involves families completing an application form for due consideration by the school governing body and with awards made in accordance with the schools bursary policy and standard admission procedure and policy.

We very much look forward to receiving applications for these awards.

The deadline for applications for bursary awards for entry to the school from September 2015 is 31st October 2014. All enquiries should be made to the Clerk to the Governors on 020 8449 0225 or email enquiries@lyonsdownschool.co.uk.

For visits to the school, our Open Day is on Thursday 9th October at 1.30pm. If you would like to come along, please contact the School Business Manager/Registrar Julie Brodie on 020 8449 0225 who will add your name to our guest list.

Nasir was so appy to meet Virgin supremo Sir Richard

A STUDENT who designed a mobile phone app to help farmers in the face of the global food crisis has been hailed by Sir Richard Branson.

Nasir Abdulqadir Yammama, 24, who is studying for a postgraduate course in creative technology at Middlesex University, saw off thousands of others to win the Enterprise Challenge.

The online competition, run by the British Council and Virgin Atlantic, in partnership with Zenith Bank, was designed to find outstanding young Nigerian entrepreneurs.

Masters student Nasir won after submitting his business plan for a mobile phone app called Verdant, which offers farmers advice on everything from growing conditions to where to buy the products they need.

Nasir, who comes from a farming family in Nigeria, west Africa, designed an app which will give farmers access to a wealth of intelligence including the type of soil their farm is on, what fertilisers would be best suited, market intelligence, weather forecasts and annual rainfall and its effect on particular crops.

It also offers a marketplace where farmers can easily buy products using their smartphone.

Nasir said: "I come from a farming family in Nigeria and wanted to use my interests, skills and career to help farmers.

"The app is like a companion for farmers and brings together intelligence they wouldn't normally have access to. Hopefully, it will help them farm more effectively and increase their business."

As part of his prize, Nasir landed a mentoring session with Sir Richard, founder of the Virgin group, who said: "Nasir had a fantastic business plan and I'm sure he will have a very bright future."

Useful advice: Nasir Abdulqadir Yammama was mentored by Sir Richard Branson

Nasir also received a £5,000 grant from Zenith Bank to help develop his app, a fully-funded scholarship to attend a five-day entrepreneurship foundation course at the Branson Centre for Entrepreneurship in Johannesburg, South Africa, and two return tickets to the UK.

Nasir, who joined the postgraduate course after completing his degree at the Middlesex University's Mauritius campus, added: "I am indebted to my creative technology course as it helped me win the competition.

"One of the modules focused on working with industry, so we learnt how to create business plans and pitch our ideas. With that training, there was no way of me losing the competition. It has been a remarkable and exciting course."

Nasir will use his grant to bring his app to market and hopes to pilot it early 2015. In the future he hopes to make the app global and introduce it to farmers in other developing nations.

GPPS, founded in 1924 is a small independent school. Girls benefit from a stimulating, challenging and nurturing environment encouraging them to become confident, independent learners achieving high academic standards.

The ISI Inspection in 2010 found that at GPPS there is a great community atmosphere where each child is well known by every member of staff and recognised as an individual. In a family atmosphere such as this the children are happy and therefore flourish academically. Before leaving GPPS every girl will have been given a responsible role at some level, instilling in them an ingrained confidence, developing outstanding individuals and preparing them for today's challenges.

Students find accounting course adds up to a good job

THE College of Haringey, Enfield and North East London is now welcoming applications for its accounting academy.

Not only will students figure out how to be great accountants, as part of the course they will also receive guidance from top business leaders, as well as mentor primary school children to develop their leadership skills.

Conel's accounting academy has this year begun a partnership with Leyton Orient Football Club and it also works with the Leadership Through Sport charity.

LTS helps learners gain access to work experience opportunities and career development as well as taking part in leadership activities across the sports and community business sector.

So, as part of the course, the students will get to mentor primary pupils, as well as receiving pearls of wisdom from industry experts.

To gain a place within the accounting academy, students need to enrol on to the accounting apprenticeship level 3, as well as taking part in an interview.

Anyone who does not already have the qualifications to go straight on to the level 3 course can apply for the two-month fast-track accounting pre-apprenticeship at level 2.

Akash Rupraelia, who took part in last year's course, did a placement with international bank BayernLB between December 2013 and January this year as part of his studies.

He said: "I was studying A-levels before I joined the College of Haringey, Enfield and North East London. The college not only secured me a career with one of the big blue chip firms, but also a professional qualification with great support from the tutors."

Another former student, Atera Begum, landed a permanent job with leading financial company ICAP, having fulfilled a placement there as an accounting and financial analyst.

She said: "I enjoyed all the elements of the course and it has given me an opportunity to secure myself a permanent job at ICAP and progress in the accounting field."

Students who join the accounting academy will take part in paid work at leading financial companies for four days a week and spend one day a week at the college studying for their qualification and taking part in the LTS programme.

Businessman David Pinchin, who set up LTS, said: "Accounting is an extremely valuable skill. The ability to interpret numbers in accordance with accounting standards is essential to any business person. But students are not on this course to become accountants, but leaders either in business, sports or community management." To apply for the accounting academy, visit www.conel.ac.uk or call 020 8442 3055.

Choices

Having been Headmaster of St Martha's for a year now I have had the opportunity to visit and speak with many other Heads of many different types of schools.

Parents are certainly fortunate to have such a choice of diverse schools in our area that it is a genuinely difficult choice when it comes to secondary education. Throughout this last year we have had many girls join our school in various year groups.

Although they are all individuals in different situations what prompted the move was a desire for their daughter to be happy. I personally believe that too much emphasis is placed on League Table position and the destination of Leavers resulting in the incorrect selection of secondary school. I also believe that we are in danger of losing sight of what a genuine education should be for a student.

Yes examinations are important, yes if you are able to study at University you should and ensure you get to the best but we must not lose sight of the individual student. What is right for them?

What represents success for them? As Headmaster of a school that does well with examination results and sends most of its students to Russell Group Universities you might say that it is easy for me to say this? But the reason we get the results we do is because of the individual attention that is given to each and every student.

We are not a hot house or exam factory. Yes it is important that our students secure the best possible academic results and have access to the real world beyond the school.

Yes we must ensure they are independent learners and will be able to cope in the different environment of university and employment but as a parent reminded me recently, we have to get them there first!

Model advice for students seeking careers guidance

MODEL Amy Willerton, who shot to prominence when she appeared in the I'm a Celebrity Get Me Out of Here jungle, is backing the Exam Results Helpline to encourage young people to make the right career choices.

The Exam Results Helpline, which is funded by the Department for Education, is used by teenagers seeking advice on where their qualifications could take them.

For the first time this year, careers advisers will also be providing help and guidance via Facebook and Twitter.

Amy, 21, said: "I'm thrilled to be supporting such a valuable helpline for students who are at a crucial point in their education.

"There are so many options out there for young people. My friends have taken a variety of paths including higher education and going straight into a job – there really is something to suit everybody.

"I got an A* and 2 Bs in my A-levels and was going to study media at Cardiff, but I didn't go to university in the end.

"I would like to think that maybe at some point I will do a degree though. The great thing about higher education is that you can go back anytime and you can even study part time and from home.

"If it was the right thing for me to go back and study again, then I'd definitely do it."

The Exam Results Helpline number, 0808 100

8000, is a free telephone advice line which is staffed by independent and highly experienced careers advisers.

Students across the UK who have received their exam results (A-levels, GCSEs and equivalent qualifications) can call in to talk through their options and to get advice about their future learning and career options.

The helpline is open throughout the exam results period and this year will be running between tomorrow and Saturday, August 23, for students receiving exam results in England, Wales and Northern Ireland.

The busiest time is always A-level results day – and tomorrow thousands of students will be tearing open envelopes to find out how they fared in the exams. Last year, the helpline received more than 6,000 calls.

The Exam Results Helpline is also being supported by Hollyoaks actors Jazmine Franks, who plays Esther, and Alfie Browne-Sykes, who plays Jason.

Any students who are reconsidering their options based on results they have or have not achieved should contact the Exam Results Helpline from tomorrow onwards.

But anyone who has a specific query about a university application should contact the UCAS contact centre on 0871 468 0468.

Hertford Regional College Tutor Vanessa Harrison wins AAT Tutor of the Year award!

The AAT, Professional Body for Accounting Technicians, hosted their Training Provider Awards Ceremony at the prestigious Hilton Metropole Hotel in Birmingham.

The awards were established to recognise the ways in which training providers engage their students, through the use of modern technologies and the creative and innovative teaching methods used.

Winners were then selected based on student nominations and although this is the first year the awards were being held, an outstanding 3,500 votes were cast for the Tutor of the Year Award. Local HRC tutor Vanessa Harrison faced tough competition from other college and university tutors to be crowned with the remarkable international award. Vanessa received remarkable praise from various students, including Charlotte Wearing who expressed "I find her teaching technique amazing. She's fun, happy to help and makes going to college on a Thursday night, having been a mum of three and being at work all day, quite enjoyable".

Student Kamran Pour echoed the praise for Vanessa by explaining "She's a great teacher. She teaches from the heart". The winners were announced by AAT President Mike Evans, with the judging panel consisting of former AAT Chief Executive Jane Scott Paul, immediate AAT former President Henry Cooper and training expert Cathy Littler.

ARE YOU IN NEED OF A CAREER MAKEOVER? HAIR AND BEAUTY COURSES ENROLLING NOW AT BARNET AND SOUTHGATE COLLEGE

You may have heard the saying that there are no more "jobs for life" but with Hairdressing and Beauty Therapy you will have a lifelong career, and one that can take you in a number of different directions. Barnet and Southgate College is incredibly proud that 98% of learners progress to employment or further education.

Such is the College's reputation that Ducle Benardo, owner of Emmanuel Hair and Beauty in north west London says: "Some hairdressing and beauty courses simply teach to a standard curriculum but we know that Barnet and Southgate College teach above and beyond this so that their students come to us with the latest specialist skills and are ready to hit the ground running. We're always keen to employ and give work experience to their students."

The industry is fast, fun, and creative. There is a lot of scope for being your own boss, working in retail, styling the stars and working abroad. The Hairdressing and Beauty sector turns over £6.2 billion a year in the UK and employs over 245,000 people. In London alone, there are around 43,000 salon managers and owners, 21,000 hairdressers and barbers and over 20,000 beauty therapists. The industry also has over 1,500 nail technicians and 950 mobile beauty therapists.

As a Hairdressing or Beauty Therapy student at the College you will learn on the job at "The Salon" or "The Spa" – the College's commercial, industry standard facilities. This will give you real experience of working in a team, with clients, and the opportunity to be in a bustling, demanding work place. The College doesn't just train you for jobs that exist now but also ones that are coming down the track.

Enrolled students also receive support in arranging work experience opportunities, which often leads to full or part-time jobs. In addition to this they get a head start in their job hunt with the College's partnership with REED NCFE. The REED NCFE Employment Zone on campus at Wood Street makes Barnet and Southgate the only College in London to have REED NCFE on hand to guarantee students access to jobs as well as tailored interview training, CV and careers advice. This ensures maximum employability once students have completed their studies at the College.

REECE HENNESSEY is 22 and is a Hairdressing Apprentice at the College; he also works in a salon in Soho.

Reece said: "I really enjoy being a Hairdressing Apprentice; I've been at the College for eight months. As an Apprentice you have the chance to train and earn money at the same time, it really suits me. It was the right decision for me as Hairdressing is what I'm passionate about and one day I'd like to have my own hair salon. I train at College once a week and also work in a salon in Soho, which is a lovely area and great work experience. I also work on clients in the College Salon, I'm really enjoying my training here."

Enrol now at Barnet and Southgate College for Hairdressing and Beauty Therapy courses starting in September 2014. For more information go to: www.barnetsouthgate.ac.uk or email: info@barnetsouthgate.ac.uk or call: 020 8266 4000

Stunning Cayman stands out

By Matt Joy

PORSCHE introduced an all-new Cayman in 2013 and it was essentially just that – a new structure and chassis, new engines, a new exterior design and a far superior cabin.

The standard Cayman proved to be a terrific thing in its own right, but as with many high performance cars, getting the right specification is everything.

This then is arguably the ultimate specification Cayman – in S form with the more powerful 3.4-litre 321bhp engine, the purist's choice of six-speed manual gearbox, the pricey but superb carbon ceramic brakes and the uncompromising but superbly supportive bucket seats.

Where the previous Cayman was a relatively discreet-looking machine, the latest version has a bit more personality. There are shades of the 918 Spyder in the front end and rather than hiding in the shadow of the 911, it's a car you could choose for its looks alone.

Better still, the Cayman has the image to stand up in its own right. It's no longer the option if you can't afford a 911 – in fact, you may find the odd 911 owner questioning their judgement.

There is more space in the cabin and it's easier to get comfortable as a result. You will find a little bit more storage in the cabin, too, certainly a little less than a similarly-sized hatchback, but you won't struggle to stash keys, phones and the like.

Luggage space requires a little more effort. There are 415 litres, which sounds good, but as this is a mid-engined car, the space is divided between the front and the rear – so take squashy bags rather than big suitcases.

Everything feels just right from the hot seat – the driving position and the weight of the controls are sublime. Fire up the flat six and there is a complex, delicious growl from the exhaust – in fact, the sports exhaust option means more noise, so it's an essential choice.

The Cayman S is so well honed it can deal with the boring day-to-day driving with ease, and when the road opens up, you realise just how good it is. The steering is sharp but weighty and not hyperactive, while the handling balance is stunning.

You can lean hard on it with complete confidence and those carbon brakes are hugely reassuring. Most importantly, the 3.4-litre engine is slick, sonorous and deliciously fast.

A standard Cayman S checks in at £48,783 – and for that money you'll have yourself an outstanding sports car. Of course, a few choice options can bump the price a little and the standard equipment levels are fairly modest.

On the other hand, the Cayman is one of the least-depreciating cars, so should you sell, you'll get more money back than with almost all rivals.

If you want a genuine ground-up road machine rather than a track refugee or a hopped-up version of a standard car, this is the one.

As long as you need only two seats, you could use it every day and not find it a chore, whereas if you're lucky enough for it to be your weekend plaything, then your weekends are going to be amazing.

It is so annoyingly perfect you want to hate it, but you just can't.

NU BLU

Mark is raring to go in his new Electronics Blue Fiat 500S. The integrated sports styling kit totally appeals to his inner petrol-head – that's body-coloured side skirts, rear spoiler, and chrome exhaust, not to mention optional 16" alloys. Inside, sports seats with accent-blue stitching and dark tinted rear windows drive the point home. And the all-new 7" TFT crystal digital display gives him his tech fix. TwinAir engine means low CO₂ emissions and no road tax*. Hat from HeadStrong, Hatton Garden, London.

In this rapidly moving technological age people are finding new ways to advertise, especially online via the internet. But contrary to what online sites are saying and common assumptions, print advertising is not dead. There are still benefits and disadvantages to both methods and the best way to succeed is to find a vehicle that covers both bases - and that's where we come in!

The Benefits of print advertising:

1. Print adverts last longer and will be seen often.
2. They will be seen by a large number of people and have the ability to hit a specific audience.
3. There is a more creative potential with print advertising.
4. There is a positive perception of newspaper advertising - it will encourage people to think the client is serious.

The Benefits of online advertising:

1. The advert content can be easily updated.
2. It's online 24/7, 12 months a year, all round the world.
3. A massive audience, with all ages now online.
4. Very quick response - you can be receiving candidates hours after posting your advert.

BENTALEB LOOKING TO PLAY REGULARLY

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

NABIL BENTALEB is determined to stay in contention for a regular place in the Tottenham Hotspur side in the coming season.

The young midfielder forced his way into the team after Tim Sherwood took charge last season and responded with a series of composed displays which saw him secure a spot in Algeria's squad for the World Cup.

And, although Sherwood has now been replaced as head coach by Mauricio Pochettino, Bentaleb is still confident that he will be able to make an impact at White Hart Lane.

"One or two people tried to say I was only in the team because Sherwood knew me from the youth teams," the 19-year-old said. "If people think I am still that little kid, then that's up to them."

"But I have been to the World Cup and I am looking forward to improving even more at Tottenham under the new manager."

"Once you achieve one goal, you set yourself a new one – and everything I set myself last season I achieved. Now I want to keep improving at Tottenham and be a regular starter."

Goalkeeper Michel Vorm is another player who will be hoping to feature regularly for Spurs this season after arriving from Swansea City over the summer.

Vorm is expected to largely provide back-up for Hugo Lloris, but he is excited to have made the move to the club.

"For me everything is new," he said. "You have players who have already worked at big clubs when they come here and maybe it's easier for them, but for me everything is new so I'm looking forward to everything – White Hart Lane, the immense training ground to train with such a quality squad and all the big games against Arsenal and Chelsea."

"That's also a reason to sign here, because I want to taste how it is to work and to play for a big club like Spurs."

"I've played against the lads in the Premier League and I think it's a team with a lot of quality. I've already heard great stories about the manager and all the players, so for me it's just looking forward to a whole new experience to be at a top team and a top club."

"It's a new challenge and I'm really looking forward to it. I think it's one of the best clubs in the Premier League and I'm pleased to be here."

Meanwhile, Spurs rounded off their preparations for the new campaign by securing a 2-1 outfit at home to German outfit Schalke in their final pre-season friendly on Saturday.

"It was a tough game," Pochettino said. "We had some good periods in the game. We played well."

"The team is showing a lot of energy. This is our style, our philosophy and now we have a week to go until the start of the season."

"It was our first time in front of our fans at White Hart Lane and it was fantastic. I say thank you to all of them."

Hoping to shine: Nabil Bentaleb is determined to make a big impact at Tottenham in the coming season

Highgate stay in the hunt for promotion

HIGHGATE remain in the second promotion spot in Division Three of the Middlesex County Cricket League despite having to settle for a losing draw from Saturday's trip to Kenton.

The visitors struggled after being put in to bat and found themselves in trouble at 111-8, but they were rescued by Johan de Silva (49) and Craig Gourlay (34) as they got up to a final total of 197.

Gourlay (4-59) also performed well with the ball, but Kalpesh Kerai (48) and Mohammed Hassan (44) impressed for Kenton as they closed on 185-8 – with their faster scoring rate enabling them to collect the four points.

Elsewhere in Division Three, North London also ended up with a losing draw from their trip to Barnes – reaching 171-8 in reply to the hosts' 237-7.

Meanwhile, an excellent individual performance from Joe Denly could not prevent North Middlesex's fine run in the top flight from coming to an end as they lost by four wickets at Richmond.

With no one else able to score more than 14, Denly produced a stunning innings of 81 out of North Middlesex's below-par total of 131. Jimmy Mugnaioni was the most successful bowler.

Denly then took 3-38 as Richmond fell to 61-6 in reply, but Jack Porter (43 not out) and Alex Griffiths (40 not out) shared in an unbroken stand of 71 to enable them to reach 132-6.

There was also disappointment for Hornsey as they slipped into the relegation zone after suffering a 25-run defeat at home to Finchley.

Ed Wharton (3-38) led the way with the ball as Finchley were restricted to 189 batting first, but the hosts then crashed to 71-5 in reply.

Adam Rossington (50) and Michael Phillipson (44) gave Hornsey renewed hope by adding 80 for the sixth wicket – only for the last five wickets to fall for the addition of just 13 runs as they were dismissed for 164.

Hornsey go to Hampstead on Saturday, while North Middlesex host Stanmore, Highgate entertain Ickenham and North London are at home to Harrow Town.

Athletes stave off threat of relegation

THE senior men's team at Enfield and Haringey Athletic Club produced a fine performance on the final day of the season to stave off the threat of relegation from the Premier Division of the British Athletics League.

Enfield and Haringey went into Saturday's meeting in Manchester in danger of the drop, but they took fourth place on the day to ensure that they finished clear of City of Liverpool and Cardiff to claim sixth spot in the final table.

Team manager Malcolm Blackmore said: "This match will undoubtedly remain in the memories of all the athletes who took part and the officials and supporters who accompanied them."

"We achieved what was thought to be impossible by finishing fourth in the match, which resulted in us being sixth overall."

"Our result is all the more impressive considering that Cardiff is virtually the Welsh national team and the City of Liverpool have a far larger catchment area than us."

Bono Bowembo continued his excellent season by taking the A-string javelin with a throw of 71.01metres, while William Grimsey won the B-string high jump (2.00m) and Farren Morgan, Michael Edwards, Jonathon Lodowski and Ben Sumner – making his final appearance for the club – joined forces to triumph in the 4x400m relay (3minutes 12.01seconds).

There were second-placed finishes from Lodowski in the A-string 400m hurdles (53.35secs), Alec Wing in the B-string 400m hurdles (54.38secs), William Mycroft in the B-string 3,000m steeplechase (9mins 37.30secs), Sumner in the B-string 400m (48.11secs), Ben Nagy in the B-string 3,000m (8mins 35.44secs), Tom Rottier in the B-string pole vault (4.00m) and Chris Kandu in the A-string high jump (2.10m).

Ben Snaith came third in the B-string 100m (10.79secs) and A-string 200m (20.88secs), a result matched by Rhys Searles in the A-string pole vault (4.60m).
